Governor Murray Plans Valley Action at Memphis

HARVEY IN ACTION

Arkansas' Pyramid-Builder Staging Third Party Convention

MEMPHIS.—(AP)—Machinery for a permanent unemployment relief organization in the Mississippi Valley states was set in motion Monday at a conference called here by Governor W. H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray of Oklahoma.

Recommendations were adopted that each governor of the Valley states establish a commission of five representatives subject to the call of the permanent conference.

Governor Murray suggested that state and federal employes be required to offer 5 to 15 per cent of their salaries for the benefit of the jobless.

Monday's conference recommended further deliberation at a meeting to be called in September.

MONTE NE, Ark.—(AP)—Perfecting final plans for a third party convention, William H. (Coin) Harvey Monday conferred with arriving delegations who Tuesday will convene here with the revision of the monetary system as a political rallying point.

Approximately 300 arrived Monday for the convention which is to nominate candidates for president and vice-president.

Girl Wife Shoots Drinking Husband

Youth Shot in left Side When Threatens to Beat With Bottle

PINE BLUFF.—The condition of G. G. Tucker, 21, who was shot and seriously wounded Friday night by his wife, Mrs. Fern Tucker, 17, remained unchanged Sunday night, physicians at the hospital here said.

Tucker was shot at the home of his wife's mother, Mrs. M. Kelly. Mrs. Tucker, who was recently married to her husband last February, while she still was in high school, said she fired at Tucker when he threatened to strike her with a whisky bottle. Tucker had been drinking, she said. The bullet from a .38 caliber revolved entered Tucker's left side and lodged in the spine, causing paralysis from the waist down. Physicians hold little hope for his recovery. Mrs. Tucker made bond of $500.

Youth Robbing a Gas Station Caught

Thre Pistols and Razor Taken From Young Man by Officers

BATESVILLE.—Three pistols and a razor were taken from Allison Hollin, 22, of Mount Pleasant, 17 miles north of here, when he was caught about 2:30 Sunday morning in the act of entering the Lone Oak filling station and store on Highway No. 69, a mile north of Batesville, by Tullie Thomas owner of the station.

Thomas, with his family, lives in the rear of the store. He was awakened by the crash of broken glass, and hurried to the front of the store to investigate. He saw the intruder crouching near the broken window, and covered him with a shot gun.

Launching of Biggest Dirigible Is Deferred

AKRON, Ohio.—(AP)—Found in tests to have "satisfactory general airworthiness," the new navy dirigible Akron Sunday night nestled within its dock, with its fledging flight postponed beyond the expected date late this week in order that it can undergo "localized strngthening" of its structure.

Decision to defer the launching of the 785 foot zeppelin, largest in the world, was arrived at by navy department and Goodyear-Zeppelin officials as thousands of persons were preparing to make an early week visit to watch ground crews practice by walking it a third of the way out, both backward and forward.

No definite word of the new walking out and initial flight dates was forthcoming.

The Goodyear-Zeppelin corporation said the proposed changes are not serious and do not relate to vital construction of the ship.

Local Man Has Five Coins 100 Years Old

Guy A. Linaker Owns Collection of 40 Dated Earlier Than 1850—Penny Piece of 1826 Was as Large as Half a Dollar—3-Cent Piece Came in Silver

An Associated Press story in last Wednesday's Star about Tom Tate's discovery of a one-cent piece dated 1835, in a ploughed field at St. Joe, Ark., revealed the fact that Guy A. Linaker, well known Hope man, has five similar coins, each of which is several years' older than the St. Joe relic.

Mr. Linaker brought to The Star office Saturday five out of a collection of 40 coins dating earlier than 1850. The five he exhibited to the newspaper were: One half-cent piece dated 1825; and four one-cent pieces, with the dates 1826, 1828, 1030 and 1931.

As the Associated Press story from St. Joe indicated, the one-cent pieces of the President Jackson era were virtually as large as a half-dollar today. Mr. Linaker's half-cent piece is only an eye-lash smaller than a quarter, and the one-cent piece is proportionately as large as a half-dollar.

The pieces are of copper, and bear the conventional Liberty-head that was in vogue before the introduction of Lincoln-head pennies about 15 years ago.

Mr. Linaker told The Star he has in his collection of 40 old coins a 3-cent piece. This is of silver, he said—one of the genuine curiosities of early American coinage.

$1 a Barrel Oil in Sight For Kansas

Gov. Woolring Says Major Puchasing Company Has Made Offer

TOPEKA, Kan.—(AP)—Success in a mid-continent area effort to obtain $1 a barrel for petroleum, through an arbitrary shutdown of production was indicated when Gov. Harry H. Woodring said a major purchasing company had offered to raise its price to that amount.

Governor Woodring declined to reveal the name of the company, but said there was a possibility that an order of the Kansas Public Service Commission, declaring a shutdown tomorrow of the Ritz-Canton Oil pool production, might be withdrawn, at least temporarily.

Sunday, in connection with announcement of the Ritz-Canton order, Governor Woodring said he was in "complete accord" with the governors of Texas and Oklahoma, who have declared martial law to enforce a complete shutdown of certain oil areas.

Gov. W. H. ("Alfalfa Bill") Murray, who first called out the military in Oklahoma, announced he would enforce his order until oil reached $1 a barrel. Petroleum then was selling for as little as 10 cents in the mid-continent territory.

Governor Woodring said that the unnamed company offering to pay the dollar quotation was negotiating with other major purchasers to determine whether they should meet the price.

In addition to the Ritz Canton order, the Kansas commission has directed wells in the Raymond pool, closed for more than a year, to be kept out of production. One-fifth of the state's present 102,000 acerage daily production was estimated to come from the Ritz-Canton field.

Rising prices, posted by various companies last week, have carried quotations to a top of 70 cents. Approximately 1,000,000 barrels of oil daily is being kept from market in the area.

While friendly petroleum producers predict the success of the arbitrary three-state action, the ultimate consumer is faced with higher prices for motor fuel in a short time. Refiners who still are quoting spot prices on the United States motor grade of gasoline, quoted it Sunday at 5 to 5½ cents a gallon in tank car lots, f. o. b. plants.

Sheep's Tail Remembers Former Starvation Days

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Easy living in captivity does not prevent Karakul sheep from continuing a thrifty habit developed by scanty food on the Russian steppes.

Wilk Karakul sheep live on grass and sometimes are forced to go without food for long periods. They developed a peculiar S-shaped tail in which fat is stored and drawn upon by the animal's system when grass is scarce.

Sheep raised in captivity and fed regularly still develop the "reserve ration" of fat in their tails, although there is no longer a need for it, says a report to the department of state from the American consulate at Milan, Italy.

Tragic Life of Youth Ended by Bullet Wound

Heard's parents died when he was 10. He lost his left arm in an accident when 12. He was horribly burned in an explosion at a college in Holly Springs, Miss., last year. He never fully recovered although he spent seven months in the hospital.

Heard said nothing before or after firing the shot, his friends told police.

Jury Discharged In Trial of Clark

Only One Vote Lacking to Acquit Californian of Murder

LOS ANGELES.—(AP)—A jury which members said failed by only one vote to acquit David H. lark, former deputly district attorney, charged with the murder of two Los Angeles politicians, was discharged here Monday after 68 hours of deliberation.

Clark, accused slayer of Herbert Spencer, editor of a political magazine, and Charles Crawford, wealthy real estate man, was on trial for killing Spencre. He was returned to jail for future action of the prosecutor's office, expected to be a retrial on the Spencer murder charge.

Jefferson Davis, one of the jurors, told the story of the struggle to reach a verdict.

"We took 10 ballots," he said. "The first three were 10 to 2 for acquittal. On the fourth ballot, the vote changed to 11 to 1 for acquittal. We stood that way for 43 hours.

"Our first ballot was taken shortly after we retired Thursday. We simply couldn't make William E. Weller see it as the rest of us did."

Davis said "We believed Mr. Clark's story to the last word." It was a tale of a double killing committed in self-defense. Clark said that during a conference last May 20, when he was a candidate for a municipal judgeship, Crawford and Spencer attempted to take his life when he refused to blacken the character of his close friend, Chief of Police Roy Steckel.

Lindberghs Under Jap Suspicion As Flight Is Delayed

Tokyo Wonders What Americans Are Doing in Kurile Islands

IS SECOND CHAPTER

Jap Government Just Finished With Pangborn and Herndon

BULLETIN

NEMURO, Japan—(AP)—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, arrived here safely after fighting motor trouble in the Kurile Islands for five days, disclaimed Monday any intention of flying around the world just now.

Lindbergh said they would go to China but not the Philippines, and are undicided where to go from China. They plan to continue to Tokyo Wednesday.

TOKYO, Japan.—(AP)—The Rengo semi-official Japanese news agency said Monday that suspscion had been aroused because of the course followed by Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh along a certain portion of the Kurile Island route in their much-interrupted flight from Petropavlovsk, in Kamchatka, to Nemuro, Japan.

The news agency said that Japanese authorities contended the famous aviators flew over prohibited areas and descended twice in lakes where landings were prohibited.

High government authorities, however, apparently did not take the reports seriously.

Suspicion cast upon the Lindberghs marks the second attack by frenzied militarists upon long-distance American flyers within the last month, Pangborn and Herndon being still in Tokyo, having just completed payment of $1,000-apiece fines for photographing Japanese forts while flying from Siberia to Tokyo.

Although there was apparently some justice in the Japanese authorities proceeding against the first two flyers, it is believed the outburst against the Lindberghs is an only natural reaction.

The Lindberghs, different from Pangborn and Herndon, are actually semi-official representatives of the United States, and would in the natural course of events observe the most rigid decorum in their flight to a foreign country.

El Dorado Plant Damaged By Fire

Union Asphalt Co. Loses Buildings and Materials Valued at $10,000

One or two aldermen rushed to the defense of the washerwomen upholding the women's labors. The proposal was tabled without a vote.

Five Arrested in A Fatal Gunplay

Columbia Co. Men Jailed at Magnolia Following Slaying of Dick Porter

MAGNOLIA—Five men were in jail here Sunday in conection with the slaying of Dick Porter, about 25, of El Dorado, who was shot through the head and killed instantly about 2 in the afternoon while riding in an automobile on a country road in the eastern section of Columbia county, near the Union county line.

The men under arrest are Alfred and Albert Pyle, twin brothers, sons of William Pyle, farmer in the eastern part of the county; Hughey Howard and Courtney and Bale White, brothers, who live in the same community.

Officers who made the arrests said Porter was shot while riding with H. H. Summerville, Jack Woolsey and Hughey Howard. Porter was driving the car. One of the men in the car ordered him to stop, it was said, and shot him when he refused. The bullet entered the back of the head and lodged in the brain. The men in the car had been drinking Sheriff Fincher, who investigated the killing, said. Summerville and Woolsey were held under bond of $250 each as witnesses.

At an inquest the coroner's jury returned a verdict of "death at the hands of unknown persons," but it is believed evidence will be produced at a hearing Monday which will lead to indictment of one or more of the men in the car with Porter when he was slain, Sheriff Fincher said. A fourth man in the car at the time has not been arrested.

The grand jury meets here Monday and is expected to investigate the killing after charges are filed.

Porter formerly a highway worker here, had been employed recently as a truck driver at El Dorado. He was well known here. He is survived by his wife, a brother and sister. The body was taken to El Dorado for burial.

1,000 Attend Girl's Funeral at Water Creek Church Sunday

WOMAN RECOVERING

Mrs. Walker Has Passed Crisis, Hospital Reports

One auto accident victim was buried Sunday afternoon and another was believed to be out of danger Monday morning—the aftermath of last Tuesday's tragic smashup on the Hope-Fulton highway.

A crowd of 1,000 persons gathered at Water Creek church-yard at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon for the burial services of Miss Vera Walker, 18-year-old assistant in the office of County School Superintendent E. E. Austin.

Many at Graveyard

It was the largest attended funeral service of the year, hundreds coming from all parts of the county to honor the memory of one whom practically all the teaching folk knew well.

Dr. J. L. Cannon, pastor of First Methodist church, Hope, delivered the funeral sermon. Superintendent Austin spoke feelingly of the girl whose services had contributed ot the educational system of the county.

Meanwhile, Dr. L. M. Lile, surgeon at Julia Chester hospital, said Monday morning that Miss Walker's mother, Mrs. H. H. Walker, 38, was believed to have passed the crisis and might recover. Her condition is considerably improved, and the hospital is optimistic. Hope had been abandoned for her life most of last week, but she continued to rally in spite of a skull fracture, two broken legs and other injuries.

Man to Be Arraigned

Hempstead county authorities who arrested the driver of the other car in Tuesday's accident, Algernon (Doc) Keith and spirited him to Little Rock for safe-keeping, are expected to prefer charges against him sometime this week. It was understood that charges in conection with Miss Walker's death had been delayed until the outcome of her mother's injuries was known.

December Cotton Close to Bottom

Quotation of 6.80 Compares to Record 5.06 Reached in 1898

MEMPHIS—(U. S. Department Agriculture)—The cotton market during the period August 15th to 21st witnessed rather wide price fluctuations with quotations August 21st about 35 points lower than those August 14th.

Demand for spot cotton was said to have ben rather indifferent both with respect to prompt and later shipments. Quotations during the week reached the lowest point for several years and on August 19th December futures contracts closed around 6.30c. The lowest quotation of record for December futures of the New York Cotton Exchange occurred during the early part of November 1898, when it reached 5.06c, and on the New Orleans Cotton Exchange at the same time it reached 4.70c.

The average price of middling 7-8 inch as compiled from the quotations of the ten markets August 21st 6.02c compared with 6.33c August 14th and 10.26c on the same day a year ago.

The movement of the new crop continues comparatively light due to lateness with the result that interior and port receipts as well as sales of spot cotton in the ten markets are small compared with those of the previous season.

Total sales for the week as reported by the ten markets amounted to 30,489 bales, compared with 118,365 bales for the same week a year ago.

According to the Bureau of the Census, domestic consumption for the season ending July 31 amounted to 5,300,000 bales, compared with 6,100,000 for the like period the season before, and stocks of cotton in consumping establishments on July 31st amounted to 1,000,000 bales against 1,200,000 last season.

According to the same source, total stocks of cotton in the United States on July 31st amounted to 6,400,000 bales, against 4,500,000 on July 31, 1930.

The world carry-over of American cotton July 31st was estimated by the New Orleans Cotton Exchange at 8,700,000 bales, and by the New York Cotton Exchange 9,000,000 bales. The New Orleans estimate for the season before was 5,900,000 bales and that of New Yorf 6,200,000.

In 1921 the Bureau of the Census estimated the world carry-over of American cotton at slightly over 9,000,000 bales, which is the largest figure of record.

India's Natives Possess Secret of Healthy Teeth

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Decayed teeth are far less common in India than in the United States

Plentiful sunshine, universal breast feeding of infants and careful teeth cleaning may be the reasons, says the U. S. chilren's bureau.

Breast feeding is common for practically all babies in India, and is continued until the child is about eighteen months old, the bureau reports.

If lack of vitamins is a cause of tooth decay, and the mother's milk supplies these vitamins, it is believed breast feeding may be an important factor in insuring good teeth.

Baldwin Was Favored

Up through Sunday night it was believed Stanley Baldwin, the old Conservataive party leader, would be called to the helm—but the Conservatives themselves are badly split, and apparently enough of that party went over to MacDonald and his Laborites, and their allies the Lloyd George Liberals to make it possible for the Labor premier to fill up the gap left in his own ranks.

The battle over the reduction in unemployment doles was heightened by the position of the Labor chancellor Philip Snowden, who insisted on reduction of the dole and refused to allow passage of a revenue tariff as one of the new tax measures.

The junction of the Labor leaders with Mr. Baldwin's Conservatives produces an interesting situation, for there are many high tariff men in the ranks of the Conservatives, notably Lord Beaverbrook, whose campaign for a high tarfiff has forced Stanley Baldwin to follow him very largely.

The Schools Will Come Through

We are glad to find the Hempstead county delegation voting "No" on a special session and extra taxes, at the public school conference in Little Rock last Friday.

The school authorities, being only human, are in a panic because of their shrunken revenues—with the prospect of a big deficit and curtailment of the school-term in some districts.

Their appeal for additional taxation is only natural. But natural also is their error—in supposing that the way out of the present emergency is through larger revenues. That would be an easy "out" for the private business man, in the city and on the farm; but he can't find it. His escape is through decreased expenses, until the emergency passes, as it eventually will.

So with the public schools system—it is due for a drastic retrenchment this year and perhaps next, until the shock to the public has worn off, and revenues have recovered.

We must remember that the economic recoil affecting the schools in 1931, struck private business in Arkansas the year before, and hit business in the East in 1929. Nothing escapes this withering blast of deflation—not even the public schools.

This newspaper tackled the problem of governmental expense nearly a year ago, warning that law-makers and public bureaus are the very last to see the economic necessity which confronts the whole state, and to which public business must bow no less than private citizens.

We fought the 6-cent gasoline tax, and we opposed increased taxes on tobacco, life insurance and other items—not on the merits of any single tax, but on the general proposition that a legislature seeking additional taxes is a legislature not bent on reducing expenses; and a legislature not bent on reducing expenses during times like these is plunging toward trouble as quickly as any private business man similarly situated.

Yet the legislature went ahead increasing taxes, and the public schools administration in the state capitol gave no thought to reducing expenses.

Private business, private citizens, have made the most painful reductions ,accomplishing in almost every instance operating economies which a year ago wouldn't be recognized as belonging to the same people this year.

Yet the majority of the delegates at last Friday's school conference profess to believe that the state, failing to get an economical program, will consent to repair the mistake by increasing taxes.

They are wrong. As President C. A. Overstreet of Magnolia A. & M. college told a Hope civic club August 14, the schools will come through along the same lines that private business is coming through. Taxes will not be increased. But expenses will be reduced. The school term may be curtailed in some counties, and building programs will be suspended for a time. But the emergency is not going to last forever.

'Nother Farm Board Surplus

WHILE visiting the quarters of the Farm Board, a Kansas City Star man has discovered another great surplus, whose existence ,however, the board is too courteous to admit. He has found a surplus of letters, mounting into hundreds of bushels. Though not yet as large as the surplus of wheat or cotton, it is a growing one that may force the board to seek appropriations from the next Congress to build storage elevators for its correspondence."

In number, the letters equal or exceed those addressed to Charles Lndbergh after his Paris flight. In content, they are totally different. The Farm Board is not lauded and complimented for its achievements above the foggy ocean of agricultural economics, nor is it burdened with costly trophies expressing admiration of the farmers. On the contrary, many of the letters are rather sarcastic.

"Congratulations on your wheat program," writes one correspondent. "We are doing fine here, thank you. Prices are rising every day." "Excuse my pencil," writes another. "I just broke my fountain pen and I can't buy a new one, considering the price of wheat." Every morning's mail brings fresh insults to the Farm Board, together with complaints over conditions, denunciations of various forces of evil which the writers blame for these conditions, and new ideas on means of improving prices. Trade the surplus wheat for rubber, place an immediate embargo on everything, pray, make whisky out of wheat, close the bucket shops, fire the crop experts and hire an advertisin gagency, are common suggestions.

These proposals are carefully filed away, but none of them seems to be just the right solution of the problem, and still the letters come from a wide acreage and the surplus of mail mounts higher and higher. What is to be done about it? The board might destroy each third letter or try to reduce the acreage of correspondence. However, it may only succeed in reducing the postal deficit.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

Roughage Ration Necessary to Cows

Not Possible for Cow to Obtain Proper Food From Grass Alone

The man who milks cows for profit in Arkansas is not so much concerned about the grain ration as he is about the roughage ration. Especially is this true since butterfat is low in price, unless he milks cows that are exceptionally good producers and even then the roughage needs for his cows receive the primary consideration, states W. H. Woodley, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture, Extension Service.

Of all forms of roughage, green grass if grazed when it is 3 or 4 inches high and before it gets tough and dry, carries more milk making materials than any grain ration a man feeds, and it is much cheaper in cost and labor. So the most profit will be made from the cow that is given the greatest number of days when she can get all the green succulent grass that she needs.

The summer rains have made the regular pasture season rather favorable, but with freezing weather the summer grasses will lose their feed value. Winter grazing can be had that will be just as valuable from the use of wheat, oats, rye or barley, if these grains are sown early. About the first of September is recommended.

But it is hardly possible for grass to furnish all the feed a cow will need every day. On these days some good legume hay is the best supplement to the grass. According to the United States census reports for Arkansas it takes no more land to produce a ton of legume hay than for other grasses. It is no heavier to handle and is much better for milk production.

rul the oats can well replace nearly all of the corn, or all, if the bran is retained. So the above ration may very from the above to the folowing: I part corn chops; 4 parts ground oats; ½ part cotton seed meal; or to the following: 4 parts oats, 2 parts wheat bran; 1 part cotton seed meal.

If maize, kaffir, or any of the grain sorghums are raised on the farm, any of these may replace the corn.

Sharps and Flats

A Department In Which The Editor of The Star Plays His Own Piano

If you were in town Friday afternoon you know that The Star had a Dog and Doll Parade.

The crowds jammed the streets and sidewalks—surprising the newspaper office as much as anybody.

A merchant neighbor told me: "The way times are, it didn't seem possible."

Anything is possible. I can even imagine that after the crowd had gathered, a smooth-tongued orator might have mounted a cracker-box and taken up a collection.

The only trouble with that is, these were all youngsters, and youngsters being keener than their elders, the minute the orator mounted his cracker-box they'd have suspected it was a meeting for grownups—and fled.

Too many adults stay through a speaking they later suspect must have been meant for children.

Youngsters are smart. My head is bloody but unbowed from an encounter with one young lady Saturday.

She had captured a prize in the Doll Parade, and came to The Star office to collect. Bus Tunstall, Elmer Calhoun and some of the boys were wrangling way late in the afternoon about the cotton situation, and I hurriedly picked up the prize-winners' sheet and said to my caller:

"You are 42?"

"I AM NOT," she retored indignantly, drawing up to her imperious height of 3 foot 11. "I am 7."

Forty-two was her registration number. But the lady's age was 7.

She got a silver dollar—and I got a horse-laugh from the cotton squabblers, who broke out in a riot behind me.

News Services Promise Aid in Lottery Fight

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Associated Press, International News Service and the United Press have assured the post office department they will co-operate fully in its effort to free the mails of unlawful matter concerning sweepstakes lotteries.

The announcement was made Friday by Arch Coleman, acting postmaster general. It said:

"These news associations hereafter will not distribute to their members and clients matter relating to sweepstakes lotteries—either in stories or photographs—just as they always have refrained from handling matter relating to the numerous other kinds of foreign lotteries patronized by players in this country."

More Livestock Reaching Markets by Motor Truck

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Motor trucks now deliver 27.3 per cent of the total livestock receipts.

Nearly 17,000,000 head of cattle, calves, hogs and sheep rode to market in trucks during 1930, an increase of 17 per cent over 1929. It would have taken 275,000 singledeck freight cars to handle the livestock which took the gasoline route last year.

Long Protest Against Bridge Closing Filed

SAN ANTONIO—(AP)—A lengthy protest against the nine o'clock closing of bridges along the border was wired the treasury department at Washingtn Thursday by the Ean Antonio Chamber of Commerce, the freight bureau and the manufacturers association.

The closing order, recently issued, was termed ill advised and calculated to arouse the ire of the Mexicans, who are "always sensitive and resent any such gestures from the American government," the local wires, identical in form, said.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

NORMA KENT, pretty 20-year-old secretary in a law office, meets MARK TRAVERS, attractive and wealthy, when together they rescue a frightened puppy from the midst of downtown traffic. Norma refuses to tell the young man her name or where he can see her again. Later she joins BOB FARRELL, young lawyer, for a dinner engagement. Farrell asks her to marry him and Norma says "no."

The scene of the story is Marlboro, middle-western metropolis. Norma takes the puppy to the shabby apartment she shares with CHRISTINE SAUNDERS, generally called "Chris," and finds her roommate in tears. Norma fears Chris is falling in love with her married employer, BRADLEY HART, proprietor of an advertising agency. The older girl refuses to tell what is troubling her.

Next day Norma inserts an advertisement about the puppy in the lost and found column of the Marlboro Press. The first person to call in response to this advertisement is Mark Travers, who explains he has made every effort to learn her identity. He tries to make a date but Norma declines his invitations coolly. Travers departs and later makes a telephone call.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER V

NATALIE PRICE reached a glittering, jewel-encircled wrist toward the French telephone. In the low, drawling tone the smartest debutantes were affecting she said slowly, "This is Nat."

There was a pause. Then the girl's face flashed into radiance. "Oh, Mark, darling," she exclaimed, "I'm so glad! Yes, I waited on the chance you might call. Tried to get you at the house but they said you'd gone. Oh, you will? Angel, aren't you sweet!" Natalie's laugh was throaty, insinuating. "Well, then, hurry. Natalie craves her ol' Marky-Mark! Bye, darling."

She put down the instrument, turned and called sharply to the maid across the room. "Get the white dress, Marcelle! I'll wear it after all. Hurry!"

At once there was excitement in the modernistic mauve and silver boudoir. Wherever Natalie Price was there was likely to be excitement. Only Marcelle, the French maid, knew what tempests could arise over a last-minute change of her mistress' costume. Natalie stormed. Marcelle cajoled. Garments went hurling through the air and Natalie's voice became shriller, louder.

Tonight the bustle and stir were in vain. It was nearly 10 p. m. when Natalie, resplendent in scarlet cloak and white satin, came tripping down the circular stairway to meet the young man below.

She ran down the half dozen stairs, stopped suddenly beside the newel post and pouted fetchingly.

"What makes you be so mean, Mark?" she wheedled. "You said you'd be on time."

Mark Travers, handsome in his dinner clothes, smiled. "Sorry," he said, "something held me up. Well, shall we go?"

COOLLY she regarded him, took the cigaret from his fingers and placed it to her lips. Natalie blew a graceful spiral of smoke, tossed her head backward, bringing the scarlet lips audaciously nearer. Since he did not respond she drew away impatiently.

"Well," she said crossly, "it's certainly far from entertaining here! Let's go to Monty's. Maybe the crowd will help thaw you out. And if you're not going to admire me at all I'll have to pick up somebody who will."

Travers grinned. "Oh, I admire you all right, Nat. You know that. Tomorrow I'll write you a sonnet to prove it."

Natalie tossed her head backward, bringing the scarlet lips audaciously nearer.

"Thanks," the girl said languidly. "Save the sonnet for your next soul mate. This one wants to dance."

Moving ahead she led the way to the outer door. They went through it and down the steps where the roadster waited at the curb. Mark took the wheel and with a rush they shot into the night.

The party at Monty's was well under way when they arrived.

A half dozen men and women, all of them youthful-looking, all wearing evening clothes, were engaged in a noisy game at one end of the huge apartment living room. It was a game in which players shrilled questions at one member of the group who apparently knew the answers. Frequently laughter drowned out the questions. From a radio in the next room came strains of a tango. A slim blond youth and a girl in swirling emerald chiffon danced at the opposite end of the room.

The arrival of Mark and Natalie was greeted with cheers. The couple who had been dancing stopped. The blond youth rushed forward and caught Natalie's hands.

"Here you!" he cried, "rescue me from this designing female, will you, Nat? Five minutes more and she'll have my watch and chain!" He turned toward the girl in green. "Ol' Mark will play with you, Geraldine. May he prove a better man than I am, Gunga Din!"

The blond youth caught Natalie's arm and drew her toward the windows leading outside. Travers stopped them.

"Wait a minute," he said. "Where's Monty?"

The girl called Geraldine answered. "Oh, she toddled off to some vague theater or something. Left a note saying she'll be back. We're having the party without her."

"But she's the hostess!"

"Well—who wants a hostess? Come on! I know where Monty keeps all the requisites. You can squeeze lemons—"

Another man joined them, interrupting. "Hello, Travers," he said. "Mind if an old fellow like me cuts in? Geraldine promised half an hour ago to give me the next dance."

"That's all right. How're you, Hart? Playing much golf?"

"Made 84 yesterday," Bradley Hart announced smiling. He was older than the others, handsome and rather distinguished looking. His face was sun-bronzed and he was well-built with a tendency toward the muscular. "Party like this is no place for me," Hart told them. "Makes me feel like a grandfather. Maybe we'd better not try that tango—"

"Don't be like that!" the girl in green reproached. "Of course we'll try it. Only right now Geraldine's thirsty. Come on, darlings." She put an arm around each of them. "Come on and we'll fix some of that nice pink stuff. Brad, you can get the ice—" She led the way toward the rear of the apartment.

IT was one of those evenings which grow gayer. Natalie Price laughed and flirted and danced. Brad Hart devoted himself openly to the young woman in green. At some time before midnight Inez Montgomery, the hostess, arrived.

Among Marlboro's socially elect there was a group who held that Inez' standing had become somewhat blemished following her third divorce in less than three years but Inez was undoubtedly a leader among the younger set.

Young America of the stratum which regards its native land as "provincial," looks on business as a droll mystery in which grandfather amassed the fortune which has been increasing ever since, and considers polo or yachting the truly worthwhile things in a man's life—these were the young people who flocked to Inez Montgomery's parties. Rowdy. Unmannerly. The cream of a social structure built on wealth.

Mark Travers looked down to find Natalie tugging at his arm. "Let's go somewhere else," she said. "This place is getting fantastic."

Travers put down his cocktail glass.

"Right," he agreed. They went off in search of wraps.

Brad Hart and the girl in green accompanied them. Only the all-night supper clubs were open in Marlboro at such an hour. They went to one, stayed through a number by a raucous orchestra and proceeded to another which Hart recommended. Mark and Natalie danced. There were drinks served. Mark and Natalie danced again. At an hour when Natalie Price's great grandfather customarily rose to start his day's work the girl and her escort reached the handsome Price residence.

They stood together before the entrance. Natalie put a hand on Mark Travers' arm. "What's the matter, Mark," she asked petulantly. "You've been a crepe-hanger all night. Why can't you snap out of it?"

He looked tired and a little sleepy. "Sorry," he said. "Didn't know there was anything to snap out of."

Throwing both arms about the youth's neck she drew his head down, met his lips with hers. Presently she went inside the house. Travers sauntered down the steps to the roadster.

He was after all a youth 23 years old who had never learned anything except how to play and play expensively. He was good looking. He had never wanted anything—very badly—in his life that had not been his. The handsome mahogany desk at which young Travers occasionally sat in his father's elegantly equipped offices was a newer plaything than his other toys. He found it less interesting. Nat Price and her crowd were the boys and girls with whom he had grown up. But it was not of Nat Price he was thinking as he strode down those steps and climbed into the bulky roadster. It was of a girl with wide blue eyes and soft, shimmering hair like a golden halo.

The rush of cool air on his face as the car moved forward was stimulating. Travers leaned back, enjoying it. Suddenly he sat up with a jerk. He had made a decision.

NORMA KENT emerged from the revolving door of the department store, her arms loaded with bundles.

Norma boarded her car. There were no seats and for a dozen blocks she rode clinging to a strap, her bundles balancing precariously. Then someone left the car and the girl slipped into the vacated seat. She realized that she was tired.

At last they reached Franklin street. Norma got off the car, walked slowly toward the apartment and up the two long flights of stairs. She inserted her key in the lock.

"Oh, Chris!" she called as the door swung open. "Chris!"

There was no answer. Norma looked about in surprise. Then she saw the note on the table. It was in Chris Saunders' writing, a hasty scrawl.

Norma picked up the sheet of paper. She read the first words, uttered a choking cry of dismay.

Life is a challenge to the bold,
It flings its gauntlet down
And bids us, if we seek for gold
And glory and renown,
To come and take them from its store,
It will not meekly hand them o'er,
Life is a challenge all must meet,
And nobly must we dare;
Its gold is twadry when we cheat,
Its fame a bitter snare
If it be stolen from life's clutch;
Men must be true to prosper much.
Life is a challenge and its laws
Are rigid ones and stern;
The splendid joy of real applause
Each man must nobly earn.
It makes us win its jewels rare,
But gives us paste, if we're unfair.

NOWADAYS you read and hear every kind of thing about cigarettes. But when you try to square some of it with your own common-sense and experience, a lot of it just doesn't "square"!

What smokers want to know about a cigarette is "How good is it?"

And when it comes to that, cigarettes are just as good and just as pure as the materials from which they're made.

In making Chesterfield, we use only riper, milder, sweeter-tasting tobaccos—the best that money can buy—and pure cigarette paper—the purest that can be made. Our chemists rigidly test for cleanliness and purity all materials used in the manufacture of Chesterfield. In our factories even the air is washed, and changed every 4½ minutes.

Everything that goes into Chesterfield is the best that money can buy or that science knows about.

"Good . . . they've got to be good," we say about CHESTERFIELD—and we mean it! And that's something you can square with everything you've ever read, or heard—or know—about this good cigarette!

Football Practice To Begin Sept. 1

Hope Loses But Three of Last Year's Team by Graduation

The Hope High School football team will start practice for the season Tuesday, September 1, according to Coach Charles Wilkin.

All prospects are expected to report Monday afternoon after 2 o'clock at the old high school building for uniforms, to be ready to start work Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock. Two practice periods will be held each day until school starts, from 8 to 10, and from 4 to 6 in the afternoon. The first two weeks practice will be held at Fair Park on account of the new field at the New High school not being quite ready to play on. Wilkins says he expects at least 50 candidates out for the initial day, and has provided uniforms for that many.

The team this year is expected to be one of the best that Hope has turned out in recent years, with 14 letter men back and many new prospects who will give the old men a run for their money. The letter men who will be back are: Captain Ivison Pritchett, Sub-Captain "Son" Jones, Mauldin, Schooley, Chamberlain, Jacks, Breeding, Adams, Bacon, Hargis, Rowe, Brown, Phillips and McKee. The only letter men that Hope lost by graduation were: Lynn Harrell, Bill Wray and Talbot Feild.

In addition to the letter men who will be back there are a large number of men who showed up well in spring football practice. Some of them are: Richards, Turner, Hollis, Berry, Urban, Eason, Green, Witt, Wyatt, Womack, J. W. Harper, Nolan Cargile, R. C. Kennedy and Graves. In addition many new prospects are expected from the rural districts to report for the initial practice.

Coach Wilkin will be assisted this year by Teddy Jones, of Pine Bluff, an Ouachita College graduate and one of the outstanding college players of the last few years. Mr. Jones will be on the job September 1.

Hope has two new opponents this year in Benton and North Little Rock, teams who are always among the leaders in the state.

The schedule follows:

September 25—Ashdown here.
October 2—Waldo, here.
October 9—Camden, there.
October 16—Malvern there.
October 23—Benton, here.
October 30—Texarkana, there.
Nov. 6—North Little Rock, here.
November 11—Prescott, here.
November 20—Arkadelphia, here.
Noember 26—Nashville, here.

All local games will be played on the new field at the new high school, 16th and Main. This field has been leveled and sodded and has new bleachers. There is a possibility that the field may be equipped for night football.

George Reis Is Winner of Speed Boat Regatta

RED BANK, N. J.—(AP)—Skipping over the choppy waters of the Shrewsbury river at an average speed of 51 miles per hour, El Lagarto, owned and driven by George Reis, of Lake George, N. Y., Saturday won the 45-mile feature race for gold cup boats in the national sweep stakes regatta.

Second place was won by John Wanamaker, Jr.'s Louisa.

Lefty Grove Fails To Equal Record

Browns' Pitches Chooses That Day to Pitch 3-Hit Game

Lefty Grove made a desperate bid for the consecutive pitching record of the American League at St. Louis Sunday, but ran into a three-hit performance by Coffman, hurler for the Browns—and Grove's winning streak of 18 straight was halted there. The Athletics' star has tied the record established jointly by Smoky Joe Wood, of the Boston Red Sox, and Walter Johnson, of the Senators, in 1912.

Grove held the Browns to seven hits in Sunday's game, but their lone tally, in the third inning, was sufficient to win, 1-0. All the bag bats of the A's wrecking crew failed Grove when he most needed them.

Coffman also won honors for being the first pitcher of the year to blank the A's.

The Athletics repaired part of the damage, however, by breaking lose in the second game of the double-header and walloping the Browns 10 to 0. Waite Hoyt held the St. Louis club in Paralysis, with but for hits, while his teammates were pounding three Brown pitchers for seventeen.

The Yankees beat Chicago twice in a double-header on the White Sox field before a crowd of 52,000. Babe Ruth slammed out his 36th home run, and is now two ahead of Lou Gehrig. The Yankees won the first by 10-4, and the second 9-1. Washington defeated Detroit 6-5, and Cleveland won over Boston, 4-3.

In the National League, the St. Louis Cardinals tied another big knot in their 1931 championship honors by taking both ends of a double bill from the Boston Braves, 16-1, and 1-0. Thirty-five thousand saw the games, the nightcap witnessing the defeat of Ed Brandt, Boston's crack pitcher, whom the Cards touched for 10 hits. He was opposed by Paul Derringer, the Cardinals' ace, and the best that Boston could get off him was five safeties.

Brooklyn set Pittsburgh down twice, 5-4 in both games.

California School Draws All Five Gill Brothers

BERKELEY, Cal.—(AP)—All five of the brothers Gill will be in college this year. Three of them will be playing on California's football teams.

Frank Gill, halfback in 1924, and Harry, who finished his playing career as a guard last year, are coming back after degrees.

Rusty Gill is leading candidate for fullback on Navy Bill Ingram's squad. Sam appears to have a guard position sewed up. Pinky Gill enters school this year as a freshman, with a reputation as a quarterback in prep school.

Conqueror of 'Dizzy' Is Lauded by Texas Critics

BEAUMONT, Tex.-(AP)—John Whitlow Wyatt, Beaumont hurler who vanquished "Dizzy" Dean and the Houston Buff in one of the games of the play-off series for the first half of the Texas league race, is attracting much notice from the experts.

Some observers credit Wyatt, sent south by t he DetroigTtsrela—south by the Detroit Tigers, with more speed than Dean as well as a better curve and superior control.

Mo. Pac. Boosters Beat Okay, 5 to 3

Close Game Ends in Victory for Locals Here Sunday

The Missouri Pacific Booster team of Hope defeated Okay at Fair Park here Sunday 5 to 3.

It was a closely-fought contest, with the score tied near the final inning, until the locals put over their two winning runs. Wilkin, Hope leffielder, accounted for two of the Hope tallies. Zinn, for Hope, and Hamilton, for Okay, both pitched good ball. The lineup:

Okay: Haryas ss; J. Russell 1b; B. Deloney 2b; H. Russell lf; Hamilton p; Daily rf; McJunkin c; O. Deloney cf; Walters 3b.

Hope: Cook ss; Robins 1b; Wilkin Hope: Cook ss; Robins 1b; Coop 3b; Wilkin lf; McDowell rf; Sparks c; [illegible] cf; Urban 2b; Zinn p.

The game was a benefit for the Junior League team.

Event at Agua Caliente for 'Gentlemen Only' Now

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex.-(AP)—Success of the Coronado and La Jolla Town Plates, races of the winter and summer season limited to feminine jockeys, has caused the Agua Caliente Jockey Club to plan a race open only to "gentlemen" riders.

The race will be open to army and navy officers and members of all riding clubs on the Pacific coast. Entrants may ride their own mounts or ride for owners who have horses quartered in the Agua Caliente stables.

The distance probably will be a mile and one-sixteenth, and the weights around 150 pounds. The test likely will be held Saturday, August 30.

The Grand Old Man

AN energetic press agent advises me that the first huddle of the 1931 football season is on. He tells me that Amos Alonzo Stagg, the grand old man of intercollegiate football, is shaping his fall strategy because this is the year Chicago plays Yale, the grand old man's alma mater.

Blue will clash with Maroon October 17 in Chicago. Besides being the first midwestern invasion ever made by an Eli team, it will mark the first meeting on the gridiron of Yale and Chicago.

It was not possible for me to be around in the late '80s of the previous century, but if it had been I would have made it a point to watch the performance of young Lon Stagg at end on the Yale eleven. I am told that he was a combination of Eckersall, Booth, Oosterbaan, Grange and Fesler. He became a member of the first all-America eleven ever selected in 1888. The selection was that of the late Caspar Whitney, whose choices were continued by the late Walter Camp. Stagg also made Camp's first team in 1889.

Forty Years on One Job

I AM informed that the Chicago-Yale game will commemorate the grand old man's 40th year of coaching on the Midway. At this point it is well to mention that Stagg actually began his coaching career at Springfield Y. college two years before he came west to accept the Chicago post.

Would that I had been a Chicago student when this clean-living young athlete came west to make his name. The season of 1892 had started when he arrived on the scene. Only 15 aspirants answered his call for the football team, so he found it necessary to play a back field position himself.

It would be worth a lot now to have seen those first Chicago games against high school teams of the district. One of them was played in a public park where a mounted policeman tried to keep the crowd back and when Stagg scored a touchdown the rival team charged him with using the cop and his horse for interference.

Parade of Stars

AS the Stagg character, tradition and technique grew, so developed Chicago football to keep pace with him. Here was a new type of football coach who stood alone among the swearing, none too gentle mentors of his day who hired their own players, took them along from college to college and had little regard for sportsmanship, character building or college tradition.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

CHICAGO plays Michigan, Purdue, Wisconsin and Illinois this fall and would like to win them all . . . but the game the grand old man is pointing for is with Yale, October 17, in Chicago. . . . Maroon material could be better than it will be this fall . . . and more experience would be welcome. . . . The line will be green, but there is one capable man at guard. . . . He is Sam Horwitz, captain, of two years' experience. . . . There may be both a Stagg and a Page in the back field . . . The Stagg will be Paul, son of the grand old man. . . . The Page will be Pat, Jr., son of the once great all-around Maroon star.

With the success of Stagg, the parade of Maroon stars got under way. At the head marched Eckersall and Pat Page and Wally Steffen and Hugo Bezdek. Eckie is dead now; Page has gone back to help the grand old man; Judge Steffen is advisory coach at Carnegie Tech; Bezdek, after years of coaching, is dean of athletics at Penn State.

An All-Star Team

THESE were the men who absorbed the teachings of Stagg and carried them to great heights, yet none of them made his only all-time all-star eleven. The members of that unbeatable combination were: Perseverance and Confidence, ends; Honesty and Courage, tackles; Participation and Co-operation, guards; Work, center; Self-control and Self-reliance, halfbacks; Obedience, fullback; and Dependability, quarterback

Seattle's Keystone Pair Set Double Play Record

SEATTLE—(AP)—Something of a record in double plays has been turned in by "Chick" Ellsworth and Freddie Muller, the keystone combination of the Seattle Indians, but Pres. Harry A. Williams of the Pacific Coast league doesn't know just how much of one it is.

The Seattle team a short time ago had made 149 double-killings, with Ellsworth, shortstop, and Muller, second base, doing most of the work.

Williams said he was sure this was a new coast record but he had no way of proving it. League records were destroyed in the San Francisco fire many years ago and since then double play marks have not been kept.

Labors In Sick Room

SAN FRANCISCO.—(AP)—William "Bill" Ingram, former Naval academy coach who takes over the reins at the University of California this season, is not a man to waste time. While convalescing from an appendicitis operation here he labored on new plays. Ingram said he converted his doctor and most of the nurses on his floor into football fans.

With an enrollment of nearly 2,000, the student body at Southern Methodist university this year cafe from eight foreign countries, 28 states and 263 cities.

Hoosier Gridmen Hefty

BLOOMINGTON, Ind.—(AP)—Indiana's football squad this fall will include 15 huskies who weigh more than 190 and 11 who top 6 feet in height. The average man on the squad will be 5 feet 10 inches tall and weigh 172.

Hanley's a Golfer, Too

EVANSTON, Ill.-(AP)—Dick Hanley, Northwestern's football coach, will start the grid season with one bit of encouragement. He has clipped six strokes from his golf score this summer.
